Description of Classes

Acting

Acting classes will consist of character development, scene work, and improving voice & diction skills. Classes are offered not only to the accomplished actor who want to sharpen their skills, but to the beginner who doesn't know where to start.

Musical Theatre

This class consists of the same aspects as the acting class as it applies to musical theatre. This is not a voice class, but rather instruction in how to apply singing & dancing to character and storytelling.

Directing *

This class will focus on how a director takes a show from preparing for auditions to opening night, including, how to read a script, how to block a scene and to direct actors, how to organize rehearsals, and how lighting, costumes, and scene design effect their approach to directing.

Scene Design *

Students will be instructed in how to plan a scene design from a script, what makes a good scene design, what theatrical aspects are needed for a design, how to consider the director and actors' needs, and how being too creative can hurt your designs.

Playwriting *

Classes will concentrate on character development, story ideas and progression, how to write believable dialog, script structure and making plays marketable.

* Private Lessons ONLY
